Post-War Program

1ST CAVALRY DIVISION—
JAPANBY MAJ. GEN. JOHN A. DEVINE
Commanding General, 1st Cavalry Division

[Note: Last week announcement was made that the First Cavalry Division had been redesignated as the First Cavalry Division (Infantry)].

THE First Cavalry Division today finds itself in the midst of one of the most interesting and exacting assignments of its history. For more than three and a half years, ever since the end of the Pacific war, this famous old Army unit has occupied the metropolitan heart of Japan.

Maj. Gen. Devine

In a nation as highly centralized as this, and with such a deeply rooted feudal concept of government, the capital and its environs have an importance to the country as a whole which cannot be over-emphasized. From one certain point in Tokyo can be seen, all within a radius of a half-mile or so, the grimly beautiful old walls and moat of the Imperial Palace, the long row of massive Western-style office buildings which were the headquarters of the huge "Zaibatsu" monopolies, certain of the big structures which once housed executive agencies of the Imperial Government, and the pyramidal tower of the Diet Building. Just across the broad tree-bordered avenue from the Moat and towering over the center of this scene, physically as well as figuratively, is the handsome Dai Ichi Building in which General MacArthur has his headquarters.

Within this small circle are located the installations which were the brain and nerve center of Japan's recently ended adventure in empire-building, as well as the headquarters which directed that adventure's defeat, and which now is engaged so successfully in eliminating the harsh feudalism which conceived and carried out the project.

Anything of importance which takes place in Tokyo is reflected at once throughout the islands of Japan. Organizations of all kinds have their headquarters in the capital, and any activities which might require counter-measures by Occupation troops probably would be initiated here. For this reason it is one of the boasts of the Division that it was specifically selected to occupy and police the Tokyo-Yokohama area and the 10 surrounding prefectures.

Our primary mission is to support occupational policies as initiated by the Supreme Commander, Allied Powers, and transmitted to us by the Commanding General, Eighth Army, and the Commanding General, IX Corps. Our specific duties, in addition to normal administration, se-

Chairman Vinson to Ask Special Rule to Speed
Service Pay-Retirement Bill Through House

A special rule to assure early and speedy consideration of the Service pay and retirement bill will be sought from the House Rules Committee next week by Representative Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the House Committee on Armed Services which yesterday unanimously voted to report the bill, which now has the full approval of the Bureau of the Budget.

Mr. Charles R. Hook, chairman of the Pay commission which made the original study, was in Washington yesterday conferring with Secretary of Defense Johnson. Mr. Hook told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL that members of his group are taking continued interest in Service pay and will meet with members of Congress to urge that the measure be enacted at this session.

Having completed nearly three months of detailed hearings, the subcommittee headed by Representative Paul J. Kilday approved a final redrafting of the measure, had it introduced as a "clean bill" under the designation H.R. 4591.

The final revision of the bill incorporates the changes previously agreed upon by the subcommittee, most of which have already been reported. A new amendment approved by the subcommittee in connection with the disability retirement of career service personnel reduces the active duty requirement in order to qualify

Expand AF Reserve Training

The Air Force, inaugurating a five-part training program for Reservists, has revealed plans to triple the number of persons receiving inactive and active duty training pay and to raise from 42,000 to 135,000 the total number of officers and airmen receiving training.

At the present time, only 25,000 Air Force Reservists are receiving inactive duty training pay, but under the new program announced by General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF, Chief of Staff, this number will be increased to 77,910, most of whom will receive 90 hours flight training annually.

Of this latter group, 12,523 will be given mobilization assignments, 29,272 will be assigned to corollary units and 36,115 will be enrolled in activities at AF Reserve Training Centers. Volunteer Training Units will include 60,000 officers and airmen and 75,000 will be authorized to participate in correspondence course work.

Here is how the Air Force summarizes its five-point program.

Mobilization Assignment Reservist:—one who receives "on-the-job" training with a Regular Air Force unit detachment or headquarters in accordance with his MOS for 48 training periods and a 15-day period of active duty each year. He will be eligible to receive pay for his reserve service.

AFRC Reservist:—one who is a member of a reserve training Wing who will train one week-end each month on equipment and supplies normally allocated to a regular tactical squadron which is maintained at an Air Force Reserve Training Center. He is eligi-

What the Pay Bill Means
An Official Analysis

THE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL presents herewith an analysis, prepared by the Staff of the House Committee on Armed Services, of the Career Compensation Bill as revised by the Kilday subcommittee.

This official analysis explains what the bill proposes to accomplish and interprets its provisions so that those concerned may see how it would affect them.

As background, readers may refer to the text of the report of the original Pay Commission which appeared in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of 25 Dec. and 1 Jan., the full text of the original bill in our issue of 12 Feb. and subsequent changes which appeared 19 Feb. and the text of new and rewritten provisions which we printed 30 April. Changes in the bill have resulted in renumbering many of the sections as indicated below.

Following is the text of the analysis of the measure as reported to the full Committee yesterday, 13 May:

SECTION 101 divides the bill into titles and sections pursuant to the table contents.

Unify Medical Set-up

Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson announced yesterday the establishment of a "Medical Services Division" of the National Military Establishments which would have control of general policies and standards for the medical services of the three components.

At the same time he announced the setting up of a Medical Department in the Air Force to be headed by Maj. Gen. Malcolm C. Grow, present Air Surgeon. He said authority would be issued for the transfer to the Air Force of 100 medical officers from the Army and 100 from the Navy.

The Army would continue to administer the General Hospitals. The Medical Services Division would be headed either by a civilian or a military officer.

New Navy Secretary

The White House announced yesterday the selection of Mr. Francis P. Matthews, Omaha attorney, as Secretary of the Navy to succeed John L. Sullivan.

USS Salem Commissioned

The "most modern warship in the world" was added to the United States Fleet today with the commissioning of the heavy cruiser, USS Salem, at Quincy, Mass.

Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, so designated the vessel in an address delivered at the commissioning ceremony. The ship, he added, epitomizes the best that "the minds of modern builders could devise."

Senate Group to Study
Selection List Delay

The Senate Armed Services Committee will investigate the delay in acting on the report of an Army Selection Board which recommended a number of brigadier generals for promotion to major general, and colonels for promotion to brigadier general.

This list was sent to the President last February after it had been approved by Kenneth C. Royall, then Secretary of the Army, and General Omar N. Bradley. Under the law the list requires the approval of the President. Those on the selection list would be appointed to fill vacancies as they occur throughout the year.

Chairman Millard Tydings of the Senate Armed Services Committee announced that a subcommittee not only will investigate this delay, but will be authorized to broaden the inquiry to all phases of promotion, and to explore any phase of the subject. This action was taken at the request of Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire who is specially interested in the reasons for pigeonholing the general officers' list.

In answer to queries Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Military Aide to the President, informed the press that the White House does not plan to take any immediate action on the Army selections. In accordance with law this list was prepared several months ago by a board of top-ranking Army officers.

Those on the approved eligible list would receive the recommended advanced rank on the retired list, in case they were retired prior to their promotion on the active list. In making assignments of these officers the Department of the Army takes into consideration their eligibility for early promotion and arranges for their transfer to duties appropriate to their respective advanced rank.

The previous general officer list prepared more than a year ago was promptly approved at the time by the President and made public. However, those on that list who were carried as eligible for promotion to major general have now been promoted, and nearly all of those listed for advancement to brigadier general have likewise been promoted. This practically exhausts the old list, and the failure of the President to act on the new list, places the Army in a somewhat embarrassing position in making recommendations to fill current vacancies.

During the week the President nominated Roderick R. Allen for promotion to permanent major general. He was not on the old eligible list for major generals, but presumably was at or near the top of the new list. This would indicate a departure from the previous well-established policy of approving and announcing the eligible list from which promotions are to be made as other vacancies occur.

There is some indication that hereafter the White House plans to consider each name individually as a vacancy occurs, rather than to act on the list as a whole, as would appear to be the clear intent of the law. The suggestion has been made that the President may have been dis-

Washington Post—"From the Navy, which has just lost one of its pet projects in the interests of integrated planning, now comes a constructive suggestion for advancing unification. Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Atlantic Fleet commander, proposes that officers be interchanged between the Armed Services for one or two year periods of duty with the view of eventually building up a top command of men familiar with the functions of each individual arm. . . . One of the best proved lessons of the war was the necessity for unified command, both of task forces and entire theaters. If a commander is to make the best use of the components at his disposal, then he must have a thorough knowledge of their capabilities—and this knowledge can best be instilled by actual assignments to each service."

Baltimore Sun—"Seldom does fate accord to individuals such an opportunity as the sentimental journey completed by Rear Adm. A. C. Read, USN-Ret., and Chief Aviation Pilot Eugene S. Rhoades. The journey in this case was from New York to Lisbon, Portugal, and it followed the route these two veterans of the Navy took in the first successful flight across the Atlantic just 30 years ago. . . . Riding comfortably in the Truculent Turtle, whose two engines delivered four times the horsepower of the four Liberty motors of the old NC-4, Admiral Read and Chief Pilot Rhoades must have shuddered at the chances they took in their flimsy craft back in 1919."

New York Times—"The swift passage of the Truculent Turtle, which shows once more how simple are ocean crossings for today's aircraft, is perhaps the best accolade for the daring fliers who first made this passage on the roads of the sky."

New York Herald Tribune—"Of the proposed changes in the 1947 act, those dealing with the powers and titles of the higher officials are more spectacular but far less significant than those dealing with the military budget system. If there is ever to be improvement in either economy or efficiency, here is unquestionably the point at which it must begin."

Boston Post—"It is more than a coincidence that the man who was responsible for carrying the Western Powers successfully through the perilous crisis, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, has at the same time (lifting of the blockade) announced his retirement as military governor of Germany. He held on to this post against his desires until the job was completed—and now he should be welcomed home with a great tribute."

Official Analysis of Career Compensation Bill as OK'd by House Group

Subsection 102 (a) defines the term "uniformed services" to include the Army of the United States, Navy, Air Force of the United States, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Public Health Service, and the Regular and Reserve components thereof.

Subsections 102 (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) define the terms "member," "officer," "commissioned officer," "warrant officer," and "Secretary."

Subsection 102 (g) defines the term "dependent" to include a lawful wife and unmarried children under 21 years of age, or unmarried legitimate children, over 21 years of age, and incapable of self-support who are in fact dependent on the member for over half of their support. It would also include father, mother, parent, parents, children, stepchildren, adopted children, stepchildren, a parent by adoption, and any person, including a former stepparent, who has stood in loco parentis for a continuous period of not less than 5 years if any of the dependents set forth in this sentence are in fact dependent on the member for over half of their support. In the case of a female member, dependents including the husband must be in fact dependent on her for over half of their support. However, in any event the stepparent-stepchild relationship shall be deemed to be terminated by the stepparent's divorce from the blood parent. No member shall receive increased allowances for a dependent during any period such dependent is a member of the uniformed services entitled to basic pay. A parent must in addition to being dependent on the member for support actually reside in the household of such member.

Subsection 102 (h) defines the term "basic allowance" as including the allowance for quarters and the allowance for subsistence.

Inactive Duty Training

Subsection 102 (i) defines the term "inactive duty training" performed with or without compensation by members of the Reserve components and provides that such training performed by members of the National Guard of the United States or the Air National Guard of the United States in their status as members of the National Guard or the Air National Guard of the several States, Territories, and the District of Columbia shall be deemed to be inactive duty training in the service of the United States.

Subsection 102 (j) defines the terms "he," "his," and "him" as including the terms "she" and "her."

Subsection 102 (k) specifies with respect to the Army and Air Force that the term "Reserve component" or "Reserve components" shall include members who are not members of any Regular or Reserve component but are members of the Army of the United States or the Air Force of the United States without specification as to any component thereof.

TITLE II—BASIC PAY AND SPECIAL PAYS

Subsection 201 (a) establishes the monthly basic pay for all members of the uniformed services within each pay grade according to cumulative years of service.

Subsection 201 (b), (c), and (d) assigns commissioned officers, warrant officers, and enlisted persons to pay grades for purposes of entitlement to basic pay. Commissioned officers are assigned to pay grades according to the recognized permanent or temporary rank or grade in which serving, and warrant officers and enlisted persons are authorized to be distributed within appropriate grades by the Secretary concerned.

Subsection 201 (e) stipulates that all members of the uniformed services on the active list, when on active duty, or when participating in full-time training or other full-time duty, and members of the National Guard and Air National Guard, when subject to Federal jurisdiction for pay purposes, shall be entitled to the basic pay of the grade to which assigned or distributed in accordance with cumulative years of service.

Subsection 202 (a) provides for the crediting of service in the computation of basic pay. It stipulates that, in computing cumulative service for this purpose, all service now creditable for this purpose shall be credited under the proposed legislation, adding, however, two new categories, as follows:

(1) Full time for all periods during which appointments were held as Reserve nurses; and

(2) Full time for all periods during which positions were held as deck officers or junior engineers in the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Credit for Pay

Subsection 202 (b) provides that additional service credit for basic pay purposes may be accrued by persons on a temporary disability retired list, honorary retired list, or any other retired list or while authorized to receive retired pay, retirement pay, or retainer pay, or while a member of the Honorary Reserve of the Officers' Reserve Corps or Organized Reserve Corps.

Subsection 202 (c) provides that time spent on active duty or in a Reserve component prior to attaining the age of 18 years is to be credited for pay purposes.

Subsection 202 (d) prohibits the counting of the same period of time more than once for pay purposes, except for retired enlisted men retired with 30 years' service who had foreign duty between 1898 and 1912, which may be computed as double time for the purpose of retirement.

Subsection 203 (a) defines "commissioned officers" who are qualified to receive the special pay provided in subsection 203 (b) for doctors and dentists. There is a further provision that volunteer service entered into prior to September 1, 1952, is the basic criterion for the qualification for this special pay.

Subsection 203 (b) provides that, in addition to any pay, allowances, or special pays that they are otherwise entitled to receive, commissioned officers as defined in subsection (a) shall receive additional compensation of $100 per month; limits this pay to those who are not serving as medical or dental interns; provides that the $100 a month shall not be used in computing retired pay, temporary disability retirement pay, or severance pay; and provides that this pay shall be paid only during a period of volunteer service.

Hazardous Pay

Subsection 204 (a) declares that nine types of duties shall be considered hazardous and that members of the uniformed services performing such duties shall receive special pay therefor. These duties are:

- (1) As a crew member, involving frequent and regular participation in aerial flight.
- (2) On board a submarine.
- (3) Frequent and regular participation in aerial flights, not as a crew member, such as observer, flight surgeon, and photographer.
- (4) Glider flights.
- (5) Parachute jumping.
- (6) Intimate contact with lepers.
- (7) Demolition of explosives.
- (8) Training at a submarine escape training tank; and
- (9) Training at the Navy Deep Sea Diving School or Experimental Diving Unit.

Subsection 204 (b) prescribes the monthly rates of pay for flying as a crew member and for submarine duty—(1) and (2) above. It establishes a graduated scale of flat monthly payments ranging from $210 for colonels and captains to $30 for recruits and apprentice seamen. All general and flag officers would be restricted to $100 per month.

Subsection 204 (c) provides that all other types of hazardous duty shall be compensated for at the rate of $100 per month for officers and warrant officers, and $50 per month for enlisted persons.

Subsection 204 (d) provides that the President may, in time of war, suspend the payment of special pay for the performance of hazardous duty or may prescribe that members of the uniformed services who perform service in certain areas or under certain conditions which involve more than ordinary military risk or danger, shall be entitled to receive special pay at rates not in excess of those prescribed for other hazardous duty herein.

Subsection 204 (e) provides that no aviation cadet shall be entitled to receive special pay authorized by this section.

Subsection 204 (f) prohibits the receipt of more than one payment of any of the special pays provided under this section for the same period of time.

Subsection 205 (a) provides that enlisted persons assigned to the duty of diving receive special pay as prescribed by the Secretary concerned at a rate of not less than $5 per month and not exceeding $30 per month.

Subsection 205 (b) provides that officers and enlisted persons of the uniformed services employed as divers in salvage or repair operations in depths of over 90 feet, or when extraordinarily hazardous conditions exist, shall be paid a special pay not to exceed $5 per hour while so employed and this latter amount is to be in addition to that prescribed in subsection 205 (a) for enlisted men.

Subsection 205 (c) repeats the provision that no member of the uniformed services shall receive the special pay authorized in this section in addition to those hazardous-duty pays authorized in the previous section.

Subsection 205 (d) provides that the President, in time of war, may suspend the payment of diving-duty pay.

Extra Enlisted Pay

Section 206 provides that, under Presidential regulations, enlisted persons of the uniformed services shall, while on sea duty or while on duty in any place beyond the continental limits of the United States, be paid the following monthly rates in addition to other pays:

Pay grades:	Monthly Rate
E-7	$22.50
E-6	20.00
E-5	16.00
E-4	13.00
E-3	9.00
E-2	8.00
E-1	8.00

Subsection 207 (a) provides for a system of reenlistment bonuses, payable in advance, increasing in proportion to the length of the reenlistment period and beginning with $40 for a 2-year period of reenlistment period up to $360 for a 6-year period, or unspecified period, and in the latter case $60 for each year thereafter. In any event the reenlistment bonus is not to exceed a total of $1,440. There is a further stipulation that the reenlistment must be made within 3 months from the date of discharge or separation, or such lesser period as the Secretary concerned may determine. In addition to the above, this subsection provides that the bonuses shall not be paid for more than four enlistments following enactment of this legislation and shall not be paid for those years of a reenlistment period which would extend the length of active Federal service beyond 30 years.

Subsection 207 (b) authorizes payment of a bonus, upon enlistment in one of the Regular services following either compulsory or voluntary active duty in such service or extended active duty of a year or more in a Reserve component.

Subsection 207 (c) provides that persons who, prior to the expiration of their current reenlistment, extend such reenlistment to a longer reenlistment period, may be paid $20 for each year of such extension, but such extension is considered as if it were a reenlistment.

Subsection 207 (d) provides an option for those members of the uniformed services who reenlist within 3 months after discharge from an enlistment entered into prior to the enactment of this legislation to accept (1) the proposed enlistment bonuses, or (2) those provided under present law up to $300. This same option is given to those relieved from active service as commissioned or warrant officers under appointments made prior to enactment of this legislation, if such service immediately followed enlisted service.

Subsection 207 (e) provides that the Secretary shall prescribe regulations for administration of the section within his Department.

TITLE III—ALLOWANCES

Subsection 301 (a) entitles each member of the uniformed services entitled to basic pay to receive one basic allowance for subsistence in such amount and under such circumstances as are provided in or may be prescribed pursuant to this section.

Subsection 301 (b) authorizes the President to prescribe, semi-annually, the amounts of the basic allowance for officers and enlisted persons. Enlisted persons shall be entitled to the appropriate subsistence allowance on a daily basis when in one of the three following situations: (1) When rations in kind are not available; (2) when permission to mess separately is granted; or (3) when assigned to duty under emergency conditions where no Government messing facilities are available. Officers shall at all times be entitled to a subsistence allowance on a daily basis.

Subsections 301 (c) and (d) authorize enlisted persons to receive the allowance while on leave or while sick and to be paid such allowance in advance.

Subsection 301 (e) authorizes the President to prescribe regulations to administer the section.

Subsection 301 (f) provides that until such time as the President prescribes the amounts, enlisted persons shall be entitled to receive $2.25 a day when in situation (1) above, $1.00 per day when in situation (2) above, and not to exceed $3 per day when in situation (3) above, and officers shall receive $45 per month.

Quarters

Subsection 302 (a) provides that members of the uniformed services shall be entitled to receive an allowance for quarters pursuant to the provisions of this section. This subsection further provides that those enlisted members in grade E-4 (less than 7 years' service), E-3, E-2, and E-1 shall be considered at all times as members without dependents for the purposes of this section.

Subsection 302 (b) provides that the President may, annually, prescribe the amounts which shall constitute quarters allowance.

Subsection 302 (c) provides that no allowance for quarters shall be paid to members of the uniformed services where they are assigned adequate Government quarters or housing facilities.

Subsection 302 (d) provides that a quarters allowance shall not be paid to any member of the uniformed services without dependents while such member is on field duty unless there is a certification by his commanding officer that he must have necessarily procured quarters at his (the member's) own expense.

Subsection 302 (e) prevents the denial of the basic allowance for quarters where dependents, by competent orders, may not occupy assigned Government quarters or housing facilities made available for the member.

Subsection 302 (f) provides that the President may prescribe regulations for the administration of this section.

Subsection 302 (g) provides that, for the period of time until the President prescribes the amount of the basic allowance and the regulations provided herein, a schedule of quarters allowance which varies from $75 to $150 for officers with dependents, and from $90 to $120 for officers without dependents, for enlisted men with dependents $67.50, and for enlisted men without dependents $45, and further allows the Secretary concerned to prescribe the interim regulations.

Section 303 is designed to permit greater elasticity in the law with respect to fixing rates to be paid to personnel in a travel status in order that sufficient leeway may be within the structure of the law to permit either an increase or a decrease in the various rates from time to time depending upon the costs incurred by personnel in a travel status in the United States. This elasticity will permit an adjustment of the rates for personnel traveling in the United States in the same manner as now provided in the case of personnel traveling outside the continental United States or in Alaska.

Travel

Section 303 permits the Secretaries of the Departments concerned to prescribe, by regulations, the rates of reimbursement for travel and to prescribe per diem rates for personnel when away from their designated posts of duty. The authority of the Secretaries of the Departments concerned will permit the issuance of regulations specifying the conditions under which travel and transportation allowances shall be authorized, including advance payments of such allowances. The travel and transportation allowances will, however, be limited to one of the following: (1) Transportation in kind or reimbursement for the actual cost thereof, or a monetary allowance in lieu of cost of transportation at a rate not in excess of 7 cents per mile; (2) transportation in kind, reimbursement therefor, or a monetary allowance for transportation, plus a per diem in lieu of subsistence not to exceed $9 per day; or (3) for travel within the United States, a mileage allowance not exceeding 10 cents per mile. This section also reenacts the provisions of existing law which permits the Secretaries of the Departments concerned to prescribe travel and per diem allowances for personnel on duty outside the continental United States or in Alaska, whether or not in a travel status.

This section authorizes transportation for personnel and their dependents and shipment of their household effects upon original appointment or enlistment in the service and upon final separation from the service. Heretofore, only members of the Reserve components were entitled to transportation for themselves and dependents and shipment of baggage when first called into active service and upon release from active duty. Likewise, personnel placed upon the retired list have heretofore been entitled to transportation to their homes and transportation for their dependents and shipment of household effects.

This section also includes in the permanent law provisions for the transportation of dependents even though there is involved no change of station in order that dependents may travel at Government expense between points in the United States where the service member is on sea duty or on duty outside the United States at a post of duty where dependents are not permitted to accompany him. It likewise covers, in the permanent law, authority to pay for transportation for dependents in cases where dependents, because of military necessity, must be evacuated from certain areas. This latter authority may be exercised only under unusual, special, or emergency conditions.

The regulations prescribing the conditions and rates relating to reimbursement for traveling expenses are required to be uniform for all services insofar as practicable. In establishing the rates and types of allowances, the Secretaries of the services concerned will consider (1) monetary allowance in lieu of transportation, average cost of first-class transportation, including sleeping accommodations; (2) per diem rates—the current economic data on cost of subsistence (including lodging and other necessary incidental expenses related thereto); (3) mileage rates, average cost of first-class transportation, including sleeping accommodations, and current economic data on cost of subsistence (including lodging and other necessary incidental expenses related thereto).

Section 304 provides personal money allowances for general and flag officers authorized at present in the amounts of $500 per year for lieutenant generals, $2,200 per year for generals, and $4,000 per year for officers while serving as Chief of Staff, as Chief of Naval Operations, as the Chief of Staff of the Air Force, as the Commandant of the Marine Corps, or as the Commandant of the Coast Guard.

TITLE IV—RETIREMENT, RETIREMENT PAY, SEPARATION, AND SEVERANCE PAY FOR PHYSICAL DISABILITY

Subsection 401 (a) serves as an introduction showing the scope and limitations of the title as it pertains to all members of the uniformed service physically disabled.

Subsection 401 (b) provides that the Secretary of each uniformed service shall establish for his service and publish annually a "temporary disability retired list" containing the names of members of the service concerned who are entitled to placement thereon.

Subsection 402 (a) provides, for members of Regular components of the uniformed services and members of Reserve components of the uniformed services on extended active duty, including both officers and enlisted persons, the qualifications for their placement upon the temporary disability retired list of their service. The qualifications for such placement are (a) unfitness to perform the duties of their office, rank, grade, or rating by reason of a physical disability incurred while on duty; (b) that the disability was not incurred during a period of absence without leave or as a result of misconduct of the member concerned; (c) that the disability is 30 percent or more under the system of rating disabilities which is used by the Veterans' Administration; (d) that the proximate cause of the disability was the performance of active duty, and (e) that the physical disability would, under the rules of accepted medical practice, be considered as probably permanent in nature. This subsection further provides that if the medical finding is conclusive that the physical disability is of a permanent nature, the Secretary concerned may retire the member concerned without placing the name of such member upon the temporary physical disability retired list, and in those cases where the disability is less than 30 percent such members may be separated from their service as provided in section 403.

Subsection 402 (b) covers the same group of members as 402 (a) and is differentiated from the aforesaid section in that, instead of the provision relating to a disability resulting directly from performance of active duty, there is a provision that such member shall have completed at least 8 years of "active service" as such service is defined in section 412 of this title, such provision giving 24-hour-a-day coverage for those members who have completed that period of service outlined above.

Part-time Members

Subsection 402 (c) provides the qualifications for those members of the uniformed service who are not mentioned in subsections 402 (a) and (b) above; that is to say, the part-time service members. The qualifications for this group differ from those previously laid out in that the physical unfitness must result from an injury; that the injury occurred while engaging in the performance of his duties as a member and that the cause of such injury was the performance of such duties; that such injury was not the result of the member's misconduct or willful negligence; and that the disability is 30 percent or more under the Veterans' Administration standards.

Subsection 402 (d) provides pay for those members of the uniformed services whose names are placed upon the temporary disability retired lists of their services. This subsection limits the period in which a name can be carried on such temporary disability retired list to 5 years and provides an election for the amount of pay, such being either 2½ percent times years of active service times basic pay or the percentage of physical disability as indicated above multiplied by the monthly basic pay of such member. The subsection further provides for temporary ranks, grades, or ratings to be used in the computation of the temporary disability retirement pay, limits such pay to 75 percent of the basic pay upon which the computation is based, and also provides that, if a member would have been promoted but for the fact of such physical disability, the pay will be based upon the grade to which such member would have been promoted. A further proviso takes care of those members who are retired and return to active duty while on a retired list; the proviso giving such members credits for promotions, disabilities, and further disabilities received while serving on such active duty.

Periodic Examinations

Subsection 402 (e) provides that those members whose names have been placed upon the temporary disability retired list shall be given periodic physical examinations not less frequently than every 18 months, to determine if the disability of such member has changed. This subsection further provides that if, as a result of the periodic physical examination, the physical disability of the member has become 30 percent or more and it is medically decided to be a permanent disability, the name of such member shall be removed from the temporary disability retired list and be placed on the retired list of his service, and such member shall receive disability retirement pay computed in the same manner as was provided for the temporary disability retired pay. In the case of those who have a physical disability of less than 30 percent, they may be separated from their service and receive severance pay. A further proviso requires the Secretary concerned to make a final determination in the case of those who have been carried on a temporary disability retired list and to retire, separate, or return them to active duty.

Subsection 402 (f) provides that, in the case of those members who would otherwise be separated because their physical disability is less than 30 percent but who have completed 20 or more years of active service, they will be retired. A proviso prevents this section from limiting the application of voluntary and involuntary retirement laws.

Subsection 402 (g) extends the provisions of 402 (f) to all members covered by title III of Public Law 810 (80th Cong.) and acts to allow such qualified members to receive retired pay at age 60, upon meeting the requirements of Public Law 810.

Subsection 402 (h) provides that temporary disability retirement pay and disability retirement pay computed on the basis of years of active service, at the election of the member concerned (see subsec. 402 (d)), shall not be considered to be disability retirement pay but shall be considered to be retirement pay. This distinction is drawn to subject "years of service" pay to income tax.

Section 403 provides that those persons who have a disability of less than 30 percent or who have completed less than 8 years of active service as provided in this title but who are otherwise qualified, under the provisions of subsections 402 (a), (b) and (c), to have their names placed on a temporary disability retired list, retained on such list, or to be retired may be separated from their service and receive severance pay. The severance pay is computed by multiplying 2 months' basic pay by a number equal to the whole number of years of active service, but the total may not exceed a maximum of 2 years' basic pay. Further provisos add the same entitlements as are used in computing disability retired pay. A last proviso prescribes that the amount of disability severance pay received shall be deducted from any Veterans' Administration compensation arising out of the same disability for the member or his dependents but shall not be deducted from dependents' death benefits.

Subsection 404 (a) lays out a requirement for submission to periodic physical examinations for those members whose names are carried on the temporary disability retired lists.

Travel for Exams

Subsection 404 (b) provides that those members whose names are carried upon the temporary disability retired lists shall be entitled to receive appropriate travel and transportation allowances to perform the travel necessary to submit to the periodic physical examinations. This subsection further provides a penalty for those members who, after receipt of a proper notification, fail to report for a periodic physical examination. Such failure may be considered just cause for terminating their pay, but the subsection further provides that payments shall be reinstated if there is a valid reason for the non-reporting.

Subsection 405 (a) provides that those members of a Regular component of the uniformed services who, on periodic physical examination, are found to be physically fit to perform their duties may, subject to their consent, be called to active duty and reappointed on the active list or be reenlisted.

Subsection 405 (b) provides that those members of the Reserve components of the uniformed services whose names have been carried on a temporary disability retired list and are found to be physically fit to perform the duties of their office, grade, rank, or rating may, subject to their consent, be reappointed or reenlisted in their Reserve component, or in the Organized Reserve Corps or in the Air Force Reserve.

Subsection 405 (c) gives to the Secretary concerned the power to take action on a fair and equitable basis to put those members who have been on the temporary disability retired list and are subsequently found fit for active duty back in their appropriate place on the active list from which removed, and in the appropriate seniority and rank, grade, or rating, considering the place they would have been entitled to, had they remained on active duty.

Subsection 406 (a) provides that, for those members of the uniformed services whose names are carried upon the temporary disability retired lists and who, as a result of a periodic physical examination, are found to be physically able to perform the duties of their office, rank, grade, or rating, shall, (1) if a Regular officer, have his temporary disability retirement pay and his status on the temporary disability retired list terminated and be recalled to active duty and reappointed to active list, (2) if a Regular enlisted man, have his temporary disability status and pay terminated on the date of his reenlistment in his Regular component, and (3) if a member of a Reserve component, have his temporary disability retirement pay and status terminated on the date of his reappointment or reenlistment in a Reserve component.

Subsection 406 (b) provides that if any member, whose name has been carried on a temporary disability retired list, does not consent to the action provided in subsection 405 (a) or subsection 405 (b) of this title, his status upon such disability retired list and his temporary disability retirement pay shall be terminated as soon as practicable.

Subsection 407 (a) provides that the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, may, in pursuance of the provisions of this title, reappoint Regular officers to the active list; that the President, or the Secretary of the service concerned, may reappoint Regular warrant officers to the active list.

Subsection 407 (b) provides for a temporary increase in the authorized number of officers in any grade to allow the appointments provided by section 405 above.

Section 408 provides that any physical disability of a member which results from misconduct or willful neglect shall result in the separation of such member from his service without entitlement to any of the benefits of this title.

Retirement Rank

Section 409 provides that a member of the uniformed services shall be retired in the rank, grade, or rating upon which his retired pay is based or upon any higher rank, grade, or rating authorized by law.

Section 410 provides that, for those members of the uniformed services who have been separated for physical disability from their service and paid disability severance pay, such payment shall act as a cut-off for the service prior to such separation and, in general, provides that such service shall not again be paid for by the Government under any provision of law. Proviso saves valid claims against the Government by a member, and prevents bar to paying of money due.

Section 411 gives those members or former members of the uniformed services heretofore retired by reason of physical disability the right to continue to draw the pay they are now receiving or to elect, within the 5-year period following the effective date of this title, (1) to qualify under this act and, if found qualified, to receive the benefits prescribed herein, limiting such qualification, however, to the physical disability upon which he had been receiving retired pay; or (2) to receive retired pay computed by one of the two methods prescribed in section 512 of this act.

Section 412 defines the term "active service" as used in this title and includes certain specified periods of service under other laws and, in general, provides that the active service is that which a member or person is deemed to have pursuant to law for the purpose of separation or mandatory elimination from the active list of his uniformed service, and specifically provides that years of Reserve service which would be used by reservists as a multiplier in the computation of their retired pay pursuant to Public Law 810 shall be credited.

Section 413 provides that the Secretary concerned shall prescribe regulations for the administration of this title in his Department, and specifically provides that no member shall be separated or retired for physical disability without a full and fair hearing if such member shall demand it.

Subsection 414 (a) places all the duties, powers, and functions relative to the determination of fitness for active service, percentage of disability at the time of separation from the service, suitability for reenlistment to active service, and entitlement to and payment of severance pay, in the Secretary concerned.

Subsection 414 (b) provides that all powers, duties, and functions incident to payments of disability retired pay, hospitalization, and reexaminations provided herein shall be controlled by regulations promulgated by the President and shall be vested in the Secretary concerned or in the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs.

TITLE V—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Subsection 501 (a) authorizes members of the Reserve components, under such regulations as the Secretary concerned may prescribe, to receive compensation for drills, instruction, or duties at which they have been engaged for not less than 2 hours at the rate of one-thirtieth of the basic pay authorized for such members when entitled to basic pay.

Subsection 501 (b) authorizes such members to be given additional training and duty without pay, and to be furnished transportation to and from such duty, subsistence en route, and subsistence and quarters during such duty.

Subsection 501 (c) authorizes commanding officers of Reserve organizations to receive not to exceed $240 a year for faithful performance of administrative functions.

Subsection 501 (d) authorizes an increase in compensation for members of the Reserve components who perform hazardous duty at the rate of one-thirtieth of the monthly special pay authorized by section 204 of this act to be paid to them when they perform prescribed drills, instruction, or duties.

Subsection 501 (e) provides that they shall not receive the pay authorized in (a), (b), (c), and (d) above when entitled to basic pay.

Parts (1) and (2) of subsection 501 (f) make necessary amendments to existing law to incorporate provisions of the Career Compensation Act in lieu of provisions which refer to the Pay Readjustment Act.

Part (3) of subsection 501 (f) makes the provisions of this section and the amendments of law likewise applicable to the Air Force.

Section 502 credits to commissioned officers of the Coast and Geodetic Survey for the purposes of pay, allowances, retirement, and retirement pay, active service as a deck officer.

The Army this week announced several changes in assignment of general officers, including the relief of General Lucius D. Clay. General Clay is relieved, effective 15 May, as Commander in Chief, European Command, and as Military Governor, U. S. Zone of Germany. Lt. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, now General Clay's Deputy and Chief of Staff, will become Acting Commander in Chief and Acting Military Governor.

Maj. Gen. Ray T. Maddocks, Director of the Plans and Operations Division, Army General Staff, will become the Army Member of the Joint Strategic Survey Committee, effective 16 May. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Leven C. Allen, who recently was appointed Executive Secretary of the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

Maj. Gen. Charles L. Bolte will succeed General Maddocks. General Bolte is now Director of the Special Joint Planning Group. Succeeding General Bolte will be Maj. Gen. William R. Schmidt, now Commanding General of the 101st Airborne Division at Camp Breckinridge, Kentucky. These changes also are effective 15 May. The 101st Airborne is being deactivated and no replacement will be named for General Schmidt.

Regular Army Commissions

Two reserve lieutenants have won commissions as second lieutenants in the Regular Army after designation as Distinguished Graduates of the Army Ground Officer Candidate School, the Army announced this week. They are:

They are the first to obtain Regular Army commissions under this program. The selection is made on the basis of potential leadership ability and academic standing.

They'll excuse your dust!

IT may seem odd, but apparently it's one of the things people expect of a Buick ROADMASTER.

Maybe it's because they know you've got 150 Fireball horsepower swooping you along — or an all-coil-spring ride that lets you blithely ignore the rough spots they have to take with care.

Maybe it's just their way of saluting a stellar performer that has outstripped the field in all phases, from its life and ginger and levelness to the silk-smooth surge of its Dynaflow Drive.

But the simple fact is — when they catch a glimpse of those four gleaming Ventiports, they rather expect you to step out and take the lead.

They realize you're driving a car that tops just about everything — in everything including attractiveness of price.

Indeed, that's one of the most spectacular things about this standout star — by the pound, by the inch, or feature by feature, it's a fine car that really stars as a buy.

Satisfy yourself on that at your Buick dealer's and you'll lose no time getting a solid order in — especially when you learn the good news on delivery date!

Analysis of Pay Bill (Continued from Page 1055)

cer or junior engineer and active service counted on June 30, 1922, for longevity pay. Section 503 validates payments of allowances heretofore or hereafter made which are based on a purported marriage where such marriage was entered into in good faith on the part of the spouse in the military service.

Section 504 provides that contract surgeons serving full time shall be entitled to pay at the rate of $262.50 a month and to allowances currently prescribed for pay grade O-2 as follows for quarters: With dependents, $82.50; without dependents, $67.50; for subsistence, $45.

Cash Clothing Allowance

Section 505 authorizes the President to prescribe the quantity, or a cash allowance in lieu thereof, and the kind of clothing to be furnished annually to enlisted men of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard and all Regular and Reserve components thereof including the National Guard and the Air National Guard.

Section 506 authorizes officers, midshipmen, and cadets of the Navy, the Marine Corps, and Coast Guard when absent from a vessel or designated post of duty and while assigned to shore-patrol duty to receive their actual expenses.

Section 507 authorizes the Secretary of the Army and the Secretary of the Navy to prescribe pay and allowances for enlisted men of the Philippine Scouts and the Insular Force of the Navy, provided such amounts do not exceed the amounts authorized for enlisted men of the Regular Army or the Regular Navy, respectively.

Section 508 entitles cadets and midshipmen at the service academies to pay at the rate of $936 per annum and allowances as provided for midshipmen of the Navy and transportation and reimbursement of traveling expenses while traveling under orders.

Section 509 provides that titles II and III shall apply equally to persons who are serving not as commissioned officers but whose pay and allowances under existing law are assimilated to the pay and allowances of a commissioned officer of any grade or rank.

Section 510 provides that when a member of the uniformed services is entitled to pay and allowances for a continuous period of less than 1 month he shall be entitled to pay and allowances for each day of such period including the thirty-first day of a calendar month.

End Family Allowance

Section 511 would terminate family allowances of dependents of enlisted persons on the last day of the sixth calendar month following the month during which this act is enacted except that for enlisted persons serving during an enlistment or reenlistment contracted prior to 1 July 1946, family allowances for their dependents shall continue until the termination of such enlistment or reenlistment contract. Any enlisted person on active duty on the date of enactment of this act whose total pay and allowances on such date, including the Government's contribution to family allowances, exceed the amount of basic pay and allowances resulting from the elimination of family allowance pursuant to this section, shall, upon application within 1 year, be discharged by the Secretary concerned.

Section 512 authorizes members of the uniformed services and certain nurses heretofore retired, for reasons other than physical disability, and fleet reservists to receive retired, retirement, or equivalent pay, computed in the amount, whichever is greater authorized by the present law or the amount obtained by multiplying 2 1/2 percent by the monthly basic pay of the highest temporary or permanent rank, grade, or rating satisfactorily held by such member as determined by the Secretary concerned by the nearest whole number of years of active service. Active service is defined as the total active duty, full-time duty, and full-time training served by any member or former member or other categories of persons. It also authorizes certain retired nurses to receive retired pay based on their relative commissioned ranks. It requires enlisted persons of the Army, Navy, and Air Force retired as such or transferred to the Fleet Reserve or the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve to complete 30 years of service, including their active, retired service, and service in the Fleet Reserve or the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve before they become entitled to the highest officer or warrant officer grade held by them. The section permits retired enlisted persons or warrant officers upon application within 1 year to be restored to their retired enlisted or warrant officer status and receive retired pay based on such status rather than receive retired pay based on the highest officer rank or grade held by them.

Section 513 extends the pay provisions of this act to members and former members of the Reserve components heretofore or hereafter granted retired pay pursuant to title III of Public Law 810, Eightieth Congress. It also authorizes certain members of the Naval Reserve or Fleet Marine Corps Reserve transferred to the honorary retired list with pay to compute their retired pay as provided in title III of that act.

World War I Rank

Section 514 authorizes warrant officers and enlisted persons heretofore or hereafter retired who served in World War I to be advanced on the retired list to the highest officer rank, or grade held during World War I and have their retired pay computed on the basis of such highest grade. The section permits retired enlisted persons or warrant officers upon application within 1 year to be restored to their retired enlisted or warrant officer status and receive retired pay based on such status rather than receive retired pay based on the highest officer rank or grade held by them.

Section 515 provides that retired personnel when on active duty shall be entitled to full pay and allowances as provided in this act and shall have the same pay and allowance rights while on leave of absence or while sick as other members of the uniformed services. In case of death on active duty, of such retired personnel, their dependents shall not be deprived of the death gratuity.

Section 516 provides that no person serving on active duty shall, prior to the expiration of 3 years and while serving on continuous active duty, suffer any reduction by reason of this act in the total compensation he is entitled to receive pursuant to existing law. The provisions of this section shall cease to apply to any part of such total compensation if such member fails to qualify therefor. The total compensation does not include contributions by the Government to family allowances, travel, and transportation allowances, per diem and station allowances, pay of court stenographers of the Army and Air Force, enlistment allowance, or reenlistment bonuses.

Section 517 entitles members or former members heretofore or hereafter retired, including transferred fleet reservists, to increases of retired pay for active duty performed after retirement or transfer by multiplying all service creditable to them by 2 1/2 percent times the base and longevity pay or the basic pay of his rank or grade. It authorizes an officer heretofore retired with 3 and 4 percent as the multiplier to tack on subsequent active service performed provided he elects to have his retired pay either computed pursuant to the Pay Readjustment Act or recomputed by using 2 1/2 percent as his multiplier as provided by the second method set forth in section 512 of this act.

Subsection 518 (a) continues the United States Marine Corps Band and provides that the pay and allowances of the leader thereof shall be the same as a commissioned officer in pay grade O-3, second leader same as W-3, and other personnel of the band shall be in such numbers, grades, and ranks as determined by the Secretary of the Navy.

Subsection 518 (b) contains a saving provision for present compensation of members and retired members of the United States Marine Corps Band.

Section 519 saves certain rights, privileges, and benefits of personnel of the former Light-house Service and the former Bureau of Marine Inspection who were transferred to the Coast Guard.

Safeguard Retired Pay

Section 520 provides that no member of the uniformed services in receipt of retired pay or any nurse entitled to such pay on the date of enactment of this section shall suffer any reduction in such retired pay by reason of this act.

Section 521 insures that any law entitling a person to retired, retirement, or retainer pay or monetary benefit which is repealed by this act shall, if such entitlement is saved to any person by this act, continue in force for such time as the entitlement may exist.

Section 522 amends certain sections of the act of 1 July 1944, relating to the Public Health Service in order to make certain phraseology relating to pay and physical disability therein conform to the provisions of this act.

Subsections 523 (a) and (b) amend the Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and Coast and Geodetic Survey laws to eliminate the 75 percent retired pay for officers who have been specially commended for their performance of duty in actual combat. Subsection 523 (b) also amends the Coast Guard and Coast and Geodetic Survey law to require the act or service justifying the commendation to be performed on or prior to 31 December 1946, so that such law will conform to Navy law.

Subsection 523 (c) provides that no reduction or increase of retired pay shall result from enactment of this section.

Section 524 amends the Servicemen's Dependents Allowance Act to conform to this act and in addition authorizes the Secretary concerned to exercise the option of an enlisted person to receive the family allowance or basic allowance for quarters subject to termination at a later date upon specific request of an enlisted person.

Sections 525, 526, and 527 amend provisions of existing law by deleting therefrom language relating to transportation and mileage allowances of military personnel covered by section 303 of this act.

Section 528 repeals provisions of existing law providing additional pay for naval mail clerks and assistant Navy mail clerks.

Sections 529 and 530 provide that aviation cadets, while on active duty, shall be paid at the rate of $105 per month, and shall receive an allowance at the same rate provided for officers which would currently be fixed at $45 per month, shall be furnished quarters, medical care, and hospitalization, and shall be issued uniforms, clothing, and equipment at Government expense. When traveling under orders they shall receive transportation and other necessary expenses on the same basis and at the same rates as enlisted men.

Section 531 amends the act of 30 June 1941, by deleting therefrom sections 1, 2, and 3 which pertain to physical disability retirement of enlisted persons of the Regular Army and the Philippine Scouts after 20 years' service at 75 percent of active duty pay, and discharge of such physically incapacitated enlisted persons with less than 20 years' service.

Subsection 532 (a) amends the definition of "National Guard of the United States" to include those officers of the National Guard who have been temporarily extended Federal recognition by the Secretary of the Army or the Secretary of the Air Force but due to delay in receiving an appointment in the National Guard of the United States oftentimes are in a doubtful legal status while awaiting permanent Federal recognition. Such temporary extension of Federal recognition if not withdrawn or replaced by permanent recognition will automatically terminate 6 months after its effective date.

Subsection 532 (b) makes the amendment applicable to the Air Force.

Repeal Older Laws

Subsection (a) of section 533 repeals all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act and this repeal includes, but is not limited to, the acts and parts of acts specified in subsections (b) and (c) of the section.

Non-Segregation Order

Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson this week approved an Air Force personnel policy which abolishes segregation. Effective immediately, the plan will be in complete operation on or about 31 Dec.

That the Air Force would end segregation and deactivate the all-Negro 332d Fighter Wing at Lockbourne AFB, Ohio, has been predicted repeatedly by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Affected by the order will be 21,026 Negro personnel in the Air Force, comprising 7 per cent of the total strength. Of that number, 316 are officers, five are warrant officers and 20,705 are airmen. At Lockbourne, there are 200 officers and 1,800 enlisted men and women, including 11 nurses and four WAF officers.

It has been revealed that Col. B. O. Davis, Jr., commanding the 332d Fighter Wing, will attend the August class at the Air War College.

Secretary Johnson also announced that he is studying statements from the Army and Navy concerning their personnel practices and policies, but had requested additional clarifying information before making a decision. He directed that this information be submitted to him, through Chairman Thomas R. Reid of the NME Personnel Policy Board, by 25 May.

The statements were submitted by the Secretaries of the three military departments in response to a directive issued by Secretary Johnson 6 April. He asked them to examine their personnel practices and to suggest steps that should be made to attain the uniform equality of treatment and opportunity demanded by President Truman's Executive Order 9881.

The proposals to assure equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the Air Force, regardless of race, color, religion or national origin, provide for the assignment and utilization of Negro personnel on the basis of individual capacity. It permits general assignment of such individuals on an Air Force-wide basis. Heretofore, Negroes had been assigned only to special type units.

AF Reserve Training

ble to be paid for 48 training periods and one 15-day period of active duty each year and may have a maximum of 90 hours flying training annually.

Corollary Unit Reservist:—one who is a member of a unit formed in the vicinity of Regular Air Force Bases which will be trained and administered by Regular USAF units of the same type, using the equipment and facilities of that unit. He can be paid for from 21 to 48 training periods, and one 15-day period of active duty each year, and may have a maximum of 90 hours training annually.

Volunteer Training Unit Reservist:—one who takes part in training and scheduled assemblies or meetings of personnel with similar or allied Military Occupational Specialties. He will not be paid for his training activities, but will accrue credits for promotion and retirement purposes.

Extension Course Reservist:—one who enrolls for the courses prepared by the Air University to complete them and earn credits for promotion and retirement purposes. He will not be paid for his reserve training activities.

The comprehensive plan was explained last week at a commanders' conference by Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, Special Assistant to General Vandenberg for Reserve Force matters. General Quesada, who was formerly the commanding general of Tactical Air Command and the commander of Ninth Fighter Command in Europe during World War II, has been assigned to USAF Headquarters to accelerate and strengthen USAF Reserve activities.

Under the plan, USAF Reservists will be trained at more than 70 Regular Air Force bases throughout the United States as well as the 23 other locations designated as Air Force Reserve Training Centers. Two of these AFRTCs will be newly activated locations, and the remaining 21 continue as the scene of reserve training activities. Eighteen other AFRTCs, previously used for such training, will be discontinued under the new plan. This readjustment is made on the basis of population density of the AF Reservists throughout the United States and the availability of training facilities.

General Quesada pointed to the plan as a "realistic" approach as a solution for the problem of most economically and most efficiently allowing Air Force Reservists to engage in training activities in areas near their homes wherever adequate training facilities are available.

AT one minute past midnight on Thursday Morning, 12 May, German time, trains and trucks began moving into western Berlin over railroads and highways, closed ten and one-half months ago by the Soviet government. This traffic is being resumed after its long interruption solely because the Armed Forces of the United States and Great Britain for nearly a year supplied two million residents of western Berlin with the essentials of life through the marvellously successful air lift, thereby demonstrating the complete futility of the blockade. Were it not for this stupendous achievement the red banner bearing the hammer and sickle would today be flying over all Berlin. American, French and British troops and officials would have been forced to beat an ignominious retreat from the German capital and would now be holding only a perilous footing beyond the Rhine. Communist prestige would have been high in Western Europe and elsewhere, and probably the Marshall Plan and the Atlantic Pact would have been foredoomed to failure. The air lift was costly, but the alternative of conceding a Soviet victory in the cold war would have been vastly more expensive. The air lift was successful beyond all expectations because of the skill, determination and perseverance of all participating elements of the Allied Armed Forces. The flyers of the American Air Force and Navy and the British Royal Air Force had the spectacular role, and more than two score American and British airmen lost their lives in the operation. Ground forces also contributed greatly to the success. They procured and moved the supplies to and from the air fields. They organized and supervised the thousands of German workmen who furnished the labor for the expeditions handling of hundreds of thousands of tons of food, fuel and other necessities that kept the people of western Berlin alive. The Berlin air lift is a splendid illustration of how the Armed Forces may render service of vital importance in the peacetime execution of foreign policy. It was only the availability of cargo planes and the skill and versatility of the military personnel that enabled the western powers to defeat the effort of Russia to force us out of Berlin. The success of this operation has apparently compelled the Russians to reverse their previous tough policy and adopt an attitude of conciliation. It may well have changed the course of the history of Europe and the world. The hard-working soldiers, sailors and airmen who kept the planes flying around the clock, in all weather, have made a mighty contribution to world peace.

SEVERAL months ago a board of top-ranking Army officers selected a considerable number of brigadier generals who were recommended for permanent promotion to major general, and a comparable number of colonels for advancement to brigadier general. This list was approved by the Army Chief of Staff and by the Secretary of the Army and forwarded to the White House about 1 Feb. On approval by the President these officers would be nominated to fill general officer vacancies as they occurred during the year. For some reason this list has been held up by the White House. According to Major General Harry H. Vaughan, Aide to the President, Mr. Truman feels that the list, having been submitted by Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall, who has since resigned, should not be approved until his successor, not yet named, has the opportunity to consider it. However, the list was sent to the President two months before Mr. Royall left the department. Furthermore, there seems to be a disposition on the part of the White House to defer action on the list as a whole, and to consider each name as a vacancy arises. The law requires the list to be prepared and on its approval by the President those recommended for promotion are not only eligible for advancement as vacancies occur, but also are eligible for advanced rank on retirement, should it occur prior to promotion. There is no legal requirement for the publication of the list, but the one prepared more than a year ago was promptly released to the press, as was the recent promotion list of the Navy, and the lists of Army and Air Force officers below general officer rank. It has been suggested that the President may not care to approve some of those on the generals' list. If that is the case he is specifically authorized by law to remove the names of those he considers not qualified for promotion. The early publication of the list is highly desirable. In assigning officers the Department needs to know well in advance whether they are to become due for promotion within the ensuing few months. The previous Army general officers' promotion list has been practically exhausted. Some of those named by the President this week for promotion to general officer rank in the Army were not on the previous eligible list but presumably are included in the new list.

Letters to the Editor

Letters expressing individual views and intended for publication should be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as evidence of good faith. If the writer desires to omit his name when the letter is published, he should so state. The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL may find it necessary to use only extracts from longer letters in order that more viewpoints may be represented.

Advanced Retired Rank

Editor, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

Current legislation awards combat decorated officers of the Navy and Marine Corps an honorary promotion upon retirement from Captain or Colonel to Admiral or Brigadier General after 25 or more years' service while officers of the Army and Air Force receive no such consideration.

At the very time The President, The Congress and the people of the U. S. are demanding complete unification of the armed forces, it is highly unjust that the Navy and Marine Corps receive such recognition while officers of the Army and Air Force, under similar circumstances, do not.

It seems that the Dept. of the Army should desire to recognize in some small way the fact that this group or category of officers deserves some consideration. These officers have devoted their lives to the service of their country, have proven their ability, in one or more wars and are now ending their careers through voluntary or forced retirement after more than 30 years' service.

All other worthy groups seem to have been taken care of by current legislation: for example: (1) Four Star Generals due to be reduced one grade, have, due to limited vacancies, retained their rank, (2) Many Reserve and National Guard officers with comparatively limited service are currently being promoted to general grade, (3) Reserve officers were advanced one grade upon separation, (4) All officers have been retired in the highest grade held during the emergency, etc.

Through no fault of their own many of the officers under consideration herein have been denied promotion despite the fact that they filled a general officer's position for an extended period during the war in a "superior" manner. For many years officers were led to believe that promotion would be made based on "Efficiency Reports." During the war these reports were practically disregarded. To be promoted to general grade one had to be with the "right" people at the "right" place at the "right" time. These are hard circumstances to control yet nobody can deny that many promotions were made on account of the fact that these circumstances existed.

The opposition or neglect to equalize the rights and privileges of officers in the same category throughout the armed services seems to stem from a few individuals fortunate enough to have attained the rank of general officer. They argue that such legislation will cheapen the rank of general. Such argument has little basis in fact as the difference of the honorary rank of Brigadier General after retirement as opposed to that rank attained during active service is well known among the military because this was the previous practice in the army as well as the navy. Furthermore the claim that such procedure would lower the high honor and prestige of general or admiral rank has not lowered its esteem in the Navy or Marine Corps but, on the other hand has raised the morale of the senior officers of those services. Such recognition as the honorary title at the time of an officer's retirement will give him a feeling of gratitude that his lifetime of duty to his country has been acknowledged. It will also mean a great deal to the officer entering civilian life.

It is my firm conviction that were such corrective legislation effected, either with or without any increase in pay, it would remove much disappointment and bitterness and be a great boon to morale in the Army and the Air Force.

Back in the days of King Arthur a knight was sent on a long journey. As there was no available horse he rode a big dog.

He was well on his way when it began to rain, so he stopped at a house and asked the owner if he might spend the night there. The owner looked at the huge St. Bernard.

"Well," he said, "I couldn't turn away a knight on a dog like this."

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—With the Soviet hunger blockade of Western Berlin lifted, speculation now turns to the four-power conference of foreign ministers scheduled to open in Paris on 23 May. No detailed announcement of the agenda of this conference has been made. However, it is known that most, if not all, of the German and Austrian problems concerning which the Soviet Union has been at odds with the western powers for nearly four years will be discussed.

It is unlikely that negotiations for German and Austrian peace treaties will be completed at this meeting. The best that can be hoped for is a narrowing of the areas of disagreement, and the reference of points of difference to committees of specialists.

One vexing question of immediate importance is that of currency in Germany. At present the western mark commands a substantial premium over the Soviet-sponsored mark of the eastern zone. This has resulted in considerable confusion, especially in Berlin, where many Germans work in the Soviet sector and are paid in eastern marks, but live in a western sector where these marks are subject to a heavy discount. An attempt will be made at Paris to establish a workable arrangement for the acceptance of both marks at par throughout Germany.

The United States, Russia, Great Britain and France will be represented at the Paris conference by their foreign ministers. The American delegation will be headed by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, with Dr. Philip Jessup as vice chairman. Western diplomats are hopeful, but not too sanguine, of the results of the conference. It is generally agreed that if Russia is sincere in her recent protestations of peaceful intent great strides toward international accord can be made at the meeting. Soviet authorities have recently made a number of conciliatory gestures that may indicate a complete change of attitude. However, the skeptics are inclined to regard this as a new tactic, but not a surety of any deviation from the same old Communist objective of world political conquest.

Just as the Berlin blockade was being lifted the Parliamentary Council of German delegates at Bonn completed work on a new constitution for Western Germany. It provides for a federal state, subject to the approval of the constituent provinces. The new state would cover only the American, British and French zones, but the way was left open for the subsequent accession of the Soviet zone. The new constitution makes no provision for any army, navy or air force; it prohibits a declaration of war, and abolishes capital punishment. Human rights are guaranteed by provisions closely paralleling our Bill of Rights. The capital of the new republic will be the ancient university city of Bonn, near Cologne.

Russia, of course, is particularly displeased with the formation of the West German government and the signing of the Atlantic Security Pact. However, she cannot hope to upset either by her demands at the Paris conference. Quite probably the Russian delegates will insist on a merger of East and West Germany in a single unified government. Soviet authorities would probably be satisfied at the moment with substantial minority Communist representation in such a government, relying on future infiltration to make the new Germany another Czechoslovakia.

While denouncing the Atlantic Pact as an act of aggression aimed at Russia, Soviet leaders continue to scoff at the military prowess of the western powers. Marshal Vasily D. Sokolovsky, former Russian commander in Germany, in a recent article for home consumption, belittled the part played by America and Britain in the victory over Germany of four years ago. He boasted of Russia's post-war military developments and of the superiority of Soviet tactics and materiel.

Despite the general easing of the tension evidenced by the lifting of the Berlin blockade Western European countries are continuing their plans to integrate their defense forces to oppose aggression. Military groups of the five Brussels Treaty countries—Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—are serving with the armed forces of the different member countries. An American group of observers headed by Major General A. Frank Kibler of the Army, is at the headquarters of the military planners of the so-called Western Union at Fontainebleau, not far from Paris, while other United States representatives are co-ordinating the military assistance program in London. Presumably when the United States ratifies the North Atlantic Pact, and appropriates funds for military assistance, these groups will be enlarged and will take an active part in the planning operations of the Western European countries.

The top command of the defense forces of the Atlantic Pact countries is certain to be reorganized and augmented when the twelve countries complete the ratification of the treaty. At present the planning is confined to the five Brussels Pact countries under the leadership of Field Marshal Viscount Bernard Montgomery. There is a general belief that Marshal Montgomery will be superseded by an American, possibly either General J. Lawton Collins or General Mark Clark, after Congress acts on the treaty, and appropriates funds for military aid. It is understood that France definitely favors an American as supreme commander of the Allied Forces, and the other countries, including Britain, have no objection.

The effectiveness of the armed forces of the Western European countries is largely dependent on rearmament. With the exception of the United Kingdom the military equipment of the various countries is either obsolescent or non-existent. While England's fleet, like our own, has been largely placed in reserve, it still maintains a strong and well-balanced surface force, consisting of two battleships, five carriers, fifteen cruisers and 33 destroyers. It also has some 30 submarines, far fewer and less effective than those of Russia. There are about 150,000 seamen in the British Navy, while the Army has about 400,000 men and the Air Force a little more than 200,000. With American Armed Forces consisting of 1,600,000 men, and with France furnishing a half-million and the other Atlantic Pact countries varying numbers, not exceeding 100,000 for any one of them, the total initial combined force would be in the neighborhood of three million, while Russia and her satellites could muster some four million or more. Potentially the manpower of the Allies would greatly exceed that of the Red countries, but lack of equipment would delay mobilization.

The sea forces of the Brussels Treaty countries, consisting mostly of British Naval units, with some French, Dutch and Belgium vessels, will hold maneuvers off the British coast next month. The exercises will be under the direction of Vice Admiral Robert Jaujard of France, and will serve mainly as a test of standard communication procedure. Similar land and air maneuvers are not planned for the immediate future. However, British anti-aircraft units have gone to Holland and Belgium to serve as instructors for Dutch and Belgian artillery.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee took steps this week to accelerate its hearings on the ratification of the Atlantic Pact. It hopes to report the treaty to the Senate by the end of the month. Such opposition as has developed has been largely due to the proposed appropriation of $1,130,000,000 for military assistance to Western Europe, a corollary to the treaty. Most critics of the pact contend that the amount is far short of requirements, and that the treaty would obligate us to spend so many billions to rearm Europe as to endanger seriously our domestic economy.

Army High Commands—Several major changes in the high command of the Army are scheduled within the next few months. The return of General Lucius D. Clay to the United States from Germany next week will leave a vacancy in the command of the United States Forces in Europe. The expected transfer of Military Government supervision to a new civilian high commissioner makes this post of less importance than during the incumbency of General Clay. However, for prestige purposes it is probable that the United States will find it advisable to assign a full general to command American troops in Europe.

General Mark Clark, now commanding the Sixth Army, with headquarters at San Francisco, is most frequently mentioned for this post. If General Clark goes to Germany it is considered probable that Lt. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, who becomes acting commander on the departure of General Clark, and who is due to return to the United States, will succeed General Clark in command of the Sixth Army.

When the United States ratifies the Atlantic Pact and appropriates funds for military assistance of Western European countries, it is probable that a top-ranking Army officer will head an American military mission to Europe. It is frequently predicted that an American officer would be selected as Supreme Commander of Allied defense forces in Europe. For such a post, General J. Lawton Collins, Vice Chief of Staff of the Army and General Clark have been mentioned.

Should the present session of Congress enact the pending measure for reorganizing the Department of Defense it is considered probable that General Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, would head the Joint Chiefs of Staff, leaving the top post in the Army vacant. Among those available to succeed General Bradley are Generals Collins and Clark, General Thomas T. Handy, commanding the Fourth Army, General Walter B. Smith, commanding the First Army, and Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, Deputy Chief of Staff. However, while the new reorganization bill is likely to pass the senate, it is understood that Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee is opposed to it in its present form. For this reason its enactment in the closing weeks of the present session is considered doubtful.

The post of Chief of the Army Field Forces will become vacant next September with the retirement of General Jacob L. Devers. For this place, Generals Clark, Handy, Smith and Wedemeyer are considered possible choices. If General Handy is assigned to new duties he would probably be succeeded as commander of the Fourth Army by Lt. Gen. Raymond S. McLain, now Chief of Information, Department of the Army. General McLain has been in Washington for more than three years and is due for a field assignment. If he leaves he would probably be succeeded as Chief of Information by Maj. Gen. Vernon Prichard, now Chief of Public Information.

The four-year detail of Maj. Gen. Luther D. Miller as Army Chief of Chaplains will expire in July. Several senior chaplains have been mentioned as under consideration as his successor, among them Brig. Gen. James H. O'Neill, present Deputy Chief of Chaplains. Maj. Gen. Everett S. Hughes, Chief of Ordnance, will reach the statutory retirement age next October. His senior deputy, Maj. Gen. Henry B. Saylor is considered as his probable successor.

The term of office of Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt as Chief of the Chemical Corps, will be completed in November, but as yet no one has been prominently mentioned to succeed him. Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell will complete his term as The Adjutant General of the Army next February. Brig. Gen. William E. Bergin, appointed this week as Assistant Adjutant General, is almost certain to become The Adjutant General on the retirement of General Witsell.

Study Retirement Communications—Ranking Army personnel officials late this week initiated a study of correspondence turned over to them by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL relating to those Reserve officers who must revert to permanent enlisted status in order to retire and who subsequently are advanced on the retired list to their highest commissioned grade. The letters, received following publication of a story in last week's ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, had been requested by Army officials in order to obtain viewpoints from the field.

Many of the communications received told of unnecessary physical examinations, of loss of pay while awaiting retirement processing sometimes requiring as much as three months, and of embarrassment caused by the "Triple split military personality" of Service veterans who are officers one day, enlisted men the next, and finally, after paper work is completed, officers again. It is expected that the Army will make a detailed analysis of these reports and will survey the possibilities of effecting reforms. As a result, anticipation is that the "last long mile" for this group, all of whom have had long years of faithful Army service, may be made more easy.

Reorganization of Army—The draft of new legislation for the reorganization of the Army has been completed and as soon as it is approved by the Secretary of Defense and the Bureau of the Budget will be introduced in Congress. The Army is now functioning under Executive Orders, issued under the wartime powers of the President, which have superseded many of the provisions of the National Defense Act. The new legislation, for the most part, would make permanent the present organization.

Under the proposed reorganization the Cavalry and Coast Artillery arms would be abolished, and the Transportation Corps and Provost Marshal General's Department made permanent. Other changes would centralize authority, formerly delegated to chiefs of branches and services, in the Office of the Secretary of the Army and the General Staff.

Military authorities hope for favorable Congressional action on the reorganization measure at the present session of Congress, because the Executive Orders of the President covering current operations expire this summer, and apparently cannot be renewed without specific Congressional authorization. If the new bill cannot be acted upon this session the department will request legislative action to extend the present organization for another year.

Five-Star Air General—The Air Force has its first five-star general in history. The President late last week signed the bill which provided for the redesignation of General of the Army H. H. Arnold as "General of the Air Force." The President sent a message to General Arnold at his home in California congratulating him on his new rank and extending best wishes for good health.

Key Medical Assignments—Col. John B. Coates, Jr., MC, USA, executive officer of Walter Reed General Hospital for the past 22 months, has been designated commanding officer of Rodriguez General Hospital, San Juan, Puerto Rico, effective next month. Col. Frank E. Hamilton, MC, USA, chief of surgical service, Walter Reed General Hospital for the past three years, has been named for transfer in the same capacity to Gorgas General Hospital, Panama Canal Zone.

Finance Department—Col. Harold F. Crisman, Chief, Receipts and Disbursements Division, Office of the Chief of Finance, was honored by his fellow-officers and civilian employees at a farewell luncheon last week, prior to his departure for Panama where he will replace Col. Frederick Pearson, the present Finance Officer at Hq., USARCARIB, who is returning to the United States. Col. Columbus B. Lenow, now Finance Officer, U. S. Army in Washington, will replace Colonel Crisman as Chief of the Receipts and Disbursements Division. Col. Bernard J. Tullington, recently returned from EUCOM, will take charge of the Washington Finance Office, U. S. Army. Maj. Arthur A. Stiefel, formerly Disbursing Officer in Berlin, Germany, will be assigned to the Pentagon Branch of that office.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—Rear Adm. Lamont Pugh, MC, USN, Deputy and Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, will attend a meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons to be held at the Academy of Science in New York City, 17 May. Rear Adm. A. H. Dearing, MC, USN, Assistant Chief of the Bureau for Personnel and Professional Operations, will represent the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery at a meeting of the Joint Committee for Coordination of Medical Activities of the American Medical Association 21 May, at Chicago.

Naval Dental Corps—Capt. M. G. Martin, Dental Officer in Command of the Naval Dental Clinic, Guam, has been elected honorary president of the recently established Armed Forces Dental Society of Guam. This group is composed of 41 dental officers of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Capt. Francis C. Snyder, DC, USN and Lt. Comdr. Creighton L. Lane, DCR, USNR, both on duty with the Second Marine Division, FMF, Camp Lejeune, N. C., and Comdr. Frank E. Frates, Jr., DC, USN, on duty at the Naval Dental School, NNMC, Bethesda, Md., will attend the Fourth Meeting of the Armed Services Medical Material Group, to be held at the Brooke Medical Center, San Antonio, Texas, during 23 to 30 May.

Personnel Policy Board—Col. Frank Dorn, who has been assistant commandant of the Armed Forces Information School, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., will report for duty with the Personnel Policy Board of the National Military Establishment next week. He is expected to be given a key position as a member of the board's military staff. Mr. Thomas Reid is board chairman and Brig. Gen. C. T. Lanham, USA, is the senior military member.

The board this week assigned to Maj. Gen. William L. Harrison, USA, Chief, Armed Forces Information and Education Division, Office of the Secretary of Defense, responsibility for development of a program to teach and explain fundamentals of democracy as part of the basic training of all recruits. An official announcement said "this course in basic citizenship will have a major objective of offsetting subversive propaganda directed at members of the Armed Forces." The course will be uniform for all the Services and will be put in operation in the fall.

Strategic Air Command—Capt. Franklin K. Lane, USAF, has been named to succeed Maj. Donald W. Thompson, USAF, as aide-de-camp to Lt. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, USAF, commanding general, Strategic Air Command, Offutt AFB, Omaha, Nebr.

"Scrambled Eggs" for Airmen—General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF, Chief of Staff, has approved a silver color cap visor embroidery—USAF lightning, cloud and dart pattern—which will be required for wear by all Air Force general officers on the new blue service cap. The material for the embroidery has not yet been selected, Air Force officials report. A sample cap, using a new type of aluminum wire for the embroidery, is being prepared for approval and standardization.

Surgeon General's Office—Col. Frederic B. Westervelt, MC, Chief, Plans and Projects Office, Medical Plans and Operations Division, will leave 18 May to survey Medical Department Organized Reserve activities in Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., and Richmond. Col. William L. Wilson, MC, Special Assistant to the Surgeon General, departed 9 May for 14 days in Camberley and London, England, in connection with civil health affairs. Lt. Col. Howard A. Van Auker, MC, Chief, Pathology and Allied Sciences Division, will leave 22 May for seven days temporary duty at Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

curity, and training, include advising and assisting the Japanese police in the maintenance of civil order, furnishing surveillance teams to observe elections and tax and food collections, the maintenance of liaison with Military Government units and prefectural police, the logistical support of Military Government teams in our zone, and the furnishing of troops to maintain guard over such installations as the Imperial Palace, the Bank of Japan, major quartermaster depots, ammunition dumps and hospitals.

Further, we are constantly prepared to conduct rescue and relief operations in the event of natural disasters, as we did during the destructive flood of the Tone-gawa River north of Tokyo in September 1947.

Our zone of responsibility comprises approximately 32,000 square miles and is inhabited by over 21,500,000 persons. Divisional units do not exercise direct control over Japanese government agencies, nor do we arrest or try Japanese for violations of their own laws, as these functions continue to be exercised by the local police and courts. We do maintain Provost

Courts for the trial of Japanese who violate important SCAP directives.

As is the case in all echelons of the Occupation, we find Japanese of every class most cooperative. Friction between troops and the civilian population is extremely slight, and crimes of violence against Allied personnel are practically unheard of. Military Police activities, naturally a very important phase of our mission, are chiefly those connected with the maintenance of order and discipline among our own personnel, and with the prevention or detection of illicit dealing in American consumer products between Allied and Japanese individuals.

Among the more colorful aspects of the job here in Japan are the formations held in celebration of certain American holidays, or to honor the most distinguished visitors. The Division frequently has been turned out for mass reviews in the Plaza before the Imperial Palace. Here the usual good show of a fine Division on parade is enhanced by the splendid background into a truly magnificent military spectacle. Outstanding among the many smaller formations on the Plaza have been the joint Guard Mounts, staged by Division troops in conjunction with the Scottish, Welsh, Australian and Indian battalions of the British Commonwealth Forces. Colorful Honor Guards for many distinguished American and Allied visitors to Tokyo are held on the small plaza before the Division Command Post at Camp Drake.

Our units are housed in four permanent camps outside of, and three barracks compounds within the city. The Division Headquarters is located at Camp Drake, astride the northwest city limits. Camp King and Camp Drew, respectively 25 and 75 miles northwest of Tokyo, and Camp McGill, 30 miles south of Yokohama, are the other permanent posts. We also have maneuver areas at Camp McNair on the lower slopes of Fujiyama, and at Camp Weir in Gumma Prefecture. Except for the garrison compounds within the capital, each installation has a small training area.

Because of our extremely low strength during the greater part of the past year, and the priority of occupation duties, the training mission during the first part of the period was confined almost entirely to the instruction of a solid cadre of officers and non-commissioned officers. However, the past winter months have brought us a flood of replacements, mostly eager recruits entering upon their first enlistments. The trained cadre, though thinly spread throughout the Division, has rendered yeoman service, and has more than justified the effort put forth in maintaining it.

On the premise that each recruit had received eight weeks of basic training in the United States, we gave them initially a few weeks of review in branch immaterial subjects, together with basic orientation in occupation duties. At present all company-sized units are undergoing basic individual tests prepared by Headquarters IX Corps and administered by a Division team. Upon successful completion of these tests, units will enter Phase II, primary unit training up to and including battalion and separate company levels. It is planned that all units will spend a substantial portion of their second phase in the field.

During Phase III, the combined training stage, it is planned to hold Division maneuvers at Camp McNair, probably during the early Autumn. By alternating the assignment of occupation duties, it is expected that each unit will be able to participate in both battalion and combined exercises during the current training year. The goal of the season's instruction is a fully organized and trained infantry-type division, ready for any eventuality and thoroughly imbued with the magnificent esprit of the old First Cavalry Division.

The reorganization now in progress alters the old square structure of the Division which was based upon two Brigades of two Regiments each. Under the new Tables of Organization the standard triangular infantry formation is adopted. In making the change, the Division has lost one of its fine regiments, the 12th Cavalry, and the Brigade Headquarters and Headquarters Troops. There are also minor alterations and redesignations of units sentimentally regretted by their members.

Nevertheless all ranks regard the new "set-up" as a good one, and are entering this phase with enthusiasm. The oldest and most historic of the proud Cavalry regiments, the 5th, 7th and 8th, retain their names, as do most of the supporting units. The traditions and esprit developed by Lee, Hood, Custer, Wainwright, Patton and the host of other famous veterans of our units will be carried forward with as much zest as in the past. The First Cavalry Division means to maintain the name and style of the "First Team."

Investigate Selection

pleased with some of the selections contained on the new list. If this is the case, he is authorized by law to remove the name of anyone that he considers is not qualified for promotion.

In the case of promotion of Naval officers to flag rank the President has approved and announced the list recommended by the Selection Board, similarly in the case of Army and Air Force promotions to ranks below general officer the President has approved the recommendations of the boards and the lists have been published well in advance of prospective vacancies.

General Vaughan told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL that the names submitted did not constitute a promotion list, but rather an eligible list and that the President saw no reason for acting on it, since all officers with good records were eligible for promotion. Furthermore, General Vaughan said, the list was recommended by former Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall, who has since resigned, and did not see why Mr. Royall's successor should be bound by the recommendations of his predecessor in making promotions for the next year or two. He said it would be like a cook who was leaving preparing menus for the new cook.

In this connection it is pointed out that the list reached the President more than two months before Mr. Royall left the department, and in the case of Naval officers recommended for flag rank the President approved the list without reference to the probable early resignation of Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan.

Heading the President's nominations this week was Maj. Gen. Roderick R. Allen, AUS, a permanent brigadier general, commanding general, 3d Armored Division, Ft. Knox, Ky., to be a permanent major general.

Brig. Gen. Harlan N. Hartness, USMA '18, AUS, a Regular Army colonel, was nominated to be a permanent brigadier general. He is deputy commandant of the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans.

Brig. Gen. Guy B. Denit, MC, Chief Surgeon, European Command, and Brig. Gen. Joseph I. Martin, MC, Commandant, Medical Field Service School, Brooke Army Medical Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., were nominated to be major generals.

Three Medical Corps colonels were selected for promotion to the permanent rank of brigadier general. They are Col. Robert P. Williams, Fourth Army Surgeon; Col. Robert B. Hill, Ft. Benning, Ga., and Col. Arthur R. Gaines, Brooke General Hospital, Tex.

Brig. Gen. Walter D. Love, DC, Chief, Dental Standards Branch, Office of the Surgeon General, was nominated to be a permanent major general.

The five officers nominated to be temporary major generals are: Brig. Gen. Edgar Erskine Hume, MC, former Chief of the Civil Affairs Division and now on duty in the Office of the Surgeon General; Brig. Gen. Paul H. Streit, MC, Commanding General, Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C.; Brig. Gen. George E. Armstrong, MC, Deputy Surgeon General; Brig. Gen. George W. Rice, MC, a permanent colonel, Chief Public Health Officer, Panama Canal Zone, and Brig. Gen. John M. Hargreaves, MC, also a permanent colonel, Deputy Air Surgeon.

Col. Edwin H. Roberts, MC, commanding officer, Fitzsimons General Hospital, Colo., was nominated to be a temporary brigadier general.

for such retirement to eight years. Originally the time was fixed at 15 years. Subsequently it was reduced to 12 years, and later, after hearing the testimony of several enlisted men the committee shortened it to 8 years.

Under the bill as finally approved by the subcommittee those who incur a physical disability of 30 per cent or more which is directly attributable to the performance of active duty may qualify for disability retirement, irrespective of length of service. However, those who have more than eight years' active duty and who incur a 30 per cent disability, even though it may not be directly attributable to the performance of active duty, may also qualify for retirement, provided the disability was not due to misconduct or wilful neglect, or incurred while on unauthorized absence.

Reunion for USNA Class of '99

The 50th graduation anniversary of the Naval Academy Class of 1899 will be celebrated 28 May at the Academy. Feature events will be a call on Rear Adm. James Holloway, USN, Superintendent; luncheon at the Officers' Club, and a cocktail party and buffet supper.

Of the 91 plebes who entered the Academy in 1895, 53 were graduated in 1898, of whom 30 reached the grade of captain or above. Of this number, 15 were retired as flag officers, including three admirals, four vice admirals and eight rear admirals.

Experimental Submarines

The Brooks subcommittee this week reported to the House Committee on Armed Services the bill for the construction of two experimental submarines.

The subcommittee declined to accede to the Department's request to remove the ceiling but amended the law so as to raise the limit on cost to $41,000,000, instead of $30,000,000.

THE birthday of Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy was honored by the large gathering at the Navy Relief Ball held 6 May—his natal day and the anniversary of the Battle of the Coral Sea. It was a birthday celebration for the Admiral in absentia as he is still confined to his quarters at the Bethesda Naval Hospital, but the cake with its candles was delivered to him a day or so later by the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Denfeld in person.

Another rousing moment at this ball, given at the Statler 6 May for the Navy Relief was the ovation given the out-going Secretary of the Navy, John L. FINANCE*Financial Digest

With the beginning of the winter wheat harvest only ten days away the Department of Agriculture forecasts the second largest yield in the history of the United States. It estimates that the winter wheat crop will total 1,021 million bushels as compared with the 1947 harvest of 1,068 million bushels, the top record. Average yields of spring wheat would make the aggregate yield for the year 1,312 million bushels, as compared with the 1947 record of 1,367 million bushels. An unusually heavy spring wheat crop could establish a new all-time wheat record.

The prospective heavy harvest will be reflected in all branches of the nation's economy. Prices of farm products will probably decline and the government expenditures for price support of farm crops will mount. Lowered farm income will be reflected in smaller sales of consumer and durable goods. With the heavy carryover from last year's bumper crops storage facilities will be severely taxed to care for cumulative stocks.

An effort will be made to increase exports of farm commodities, particularly to western Europe. However, European yields are now expected to be heavier than originally forecast, as the long drought has been relieved by recent rains, materially improving crop prospects.

ment of Labor, died 7 May at Valley Forge General Hospital, where he had been a patient for two months.

Colonel Brady was born 14 July 1884, and was graduated from St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., in 1907. He entered the Army in 1909 and was commissioned in the cavalry two years later. He transferred to the Quartermaster Corps in 1920. He served three tours of duty at the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot. The first from June 1919 until May 1922, under emergency conditions as executive officer, assistant commandant of the General Administrative School and officer in charge of the storage and distribution division from 1933 to 1939 and again as executive officer in June 1941. He was commanding officer of the depot during a critical war year beginning July 1942.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Florence Kimball Brady; two daughters, Mrs. Philip W. Long, of Columbus, Ind., and Mrs. Landis O. Carter, of Philadelphia, Pa. Four grandchildren also survive.

Solemn Requiem Mass was sung 12 May in the Catholic Chapel at Arlington, Va. Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery.

Colonel Brady resided at 2125 Porter St., Philadelphia, Pa.

MERCHANT MARINE*Merchant Marine

The resurgence of the merchant shipping fleets of maritime nations and the building up of such fleets by nations previously possessing little or no shipping, poses serious competitive factors for the American Merchant Marine in the foreign trades, according to the National Federation of American Shipping.

Upon completion of vessel construction currently underway or on order, the world's merchant fleet of oceangoing ships of 1,000 gross tons and over will total almost 89 million deadweight, or 12% larger than in 1939, excluding U. S. Government-owned tonnage.

At the beginning of 1949 a total of nearly 12 million dwt. of merchant shipping was on order or under construction in the world. Of this amount Great Britain was building more than half; the Marshall Plan nations as a group accounted for 70%; the United States only 12%.
